LONDON, UK – 22 July 2009. Leading SAP practice Invenio Business Solutions and Synchronology - authors of the innovative Singlepoint business process management platform - have today announced they are to form a partnership to provide custom integration services for customers where both SAP and Singlepoint serve as mission-critical business applications.

Synchronology's Joint Managing Director Andrew Holland explains, "We are delighted to have signed this agreement for two reasons; firstly, we can now offer our customers a vast range of SAP services and expertise but secondly, we are thrilled to have secured a partnership with a company of the calibre of Invenio. Singlepoint and SAP are a perfect match, each one complementing the other and this partnership will allow our customers to harness the full power of both systems for even greater business efficiency."

Partho Bhattacharya, Invenio's Managing Director added "Companies that have SAP in their IT landscapes usually find that there are a number of SAP-driven processes intrinsic to the workflows managed through Singlepoint. As integration specialists, we know that companies who run integrated applications benefit from improved collaboration, better productivity and improved data accuracy and consistency. It's with these aims in mind that we are delighted to be able to provide a cohesive integration offering that will eradicate any problems associated with operating a disconnected SAP estate."

Laura Coles, Marketing Director at Invenio concluded "The service is being introduced to a number of key customers over the next several months and both Synchronology and Invenio are looking forward to assisting customers in extracting the maximum value from these mission-critical business applications."
